Semone's Fun Page

Semone Sevion, Intern

Once you're a military child, you're always a military child. Even now at 23 years old, I think back to the different games I used to play and all the great memories. I went through different phases in my young life: the nerdy phase, when I read tons of books and put together puzzles; the "tomboy" phase, when I played video games and basketball with my dad; and at some point, the "girly" phase, when I had tea parties with my mom, my Barbie dolls and My Little Pony figurines. My happiest memories however, were at my grandma's house where we would play Solitaire and Monopoly all night. Take a moment and play some of the games on this page. It may take you on a trip down memory lane!
