Tribute to the Fallen

SSgt Maddox, Thomas G.

Your alarm is yelling at you, "Time to get moving!" You look over to see 0230 on the clock and you can't help but think "Why am I doing this to myself?" Then a September night in a faraway place creeps into your thoughts. Alone in the dark, you run in silence and you realize "I could be in my bed right now." Then you remember the brave individuals who were just trying to help others and will never know the warmth of their beds again; so you run on. It seems like you have ran for hours now, maybe even days. There are blisters on your feet and the muscles in your legs are sore. Suddenly you remember an IED (improvised explosive device) that stopped a Marine from coming home two days before he was supposed to fly – your pace increases! What they gave for us cannot be measured in footsteps; what they gave for us cannot be measured in feet; what they gave for us cannot be measured in yards or even miles.

The men and women we pay tribute to made the choice to serve. They chose a profession they knew could ultimately end their lives. Many knowing full well they would be sent into harm's way because of their decision to join the military after the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001. Since that time, our country – or more accurately – our service members, have been continuously at war. During this time, many United States service members have given the "last full measure of devotion." Of the nearly 6,900 total casualties of the Global War on Terror conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan, more than 1,500 are United States Marines and Navy Corpsman which serve as medics for the Marine Corps.

It is to those 1,500 Marines and Sailors the Marine Corps Detachment on Fort Gordon will be paying tribute to during the forthcoming Tribute to the Fallen Run. Started by Gunnery Sergeant (Ret.) James Meek, the Tribute has been conducted annually since 2005. Since its inception, the run has garnered support from the installation and the outlying community. Fort Gordon has numerous amount of units which have attended the ceremonies' opening and closing of the event. There has also been annual local news coverage, as well as continued support for the event provided by a local chapter of a national nonprofit organization, the Patriot Guard Riders.

This year's Tribute to the Fallen Run will begin on Barton Field on October 30th and will continue for ten days, ending in a closing ceremony on November 8th. During the ten days, there will be either a Marine or Sailor continuously running. The duration of the event will cover more than 1,500 miles, one mile for each of the fallen. While running, the Marine or Sailor will carry three blank dog tags and twenty-one rounds of blank ammunition which will be used for the twenty-one gun salute at the closing ceremony. The rounds will be passed from runner to runner and the blank tags will be hung on a combat memorial. Some participants will run for friends, some will run for those that have been affected personally, and some will run for complete strangers. Everyone who runs will be doing so to ensure these men and women are not forgotten. To the individuals running, this is a solemn event so there is no need to cheer when you see them run by – no matter the hour of the day or night! Do, however, take their presence as a reminder to reflect on those that paid the ultimate price for our freedom!

Mr. Craig Larsen, MWR Director

Happy holidays and Merry Christmas to all members and friends of the Fort Gordon community. As we have seen with events that have transpired in our country and across the globe there are forces at work that would divide us and foment strife. This special time of year is one that focusses on the those positive aspects of this worldly existence, such as faith, family, and especially, love. I wish for you to take strength from those positive forces and encourage us all to reach out and be a positive influence in those lives that you touch. Have a great, and safe, holiday season!

Sincerely, Craig Larsen

Magic at GRAVATT

Crystal Tyson, Editor

There is a hidden, magical place off of Interstate 20, Exit 29, where families build bonds and form memories. A place that ensures you leave with more love and happiness than when you came. Located in Aiken, South Carolina, Gravatt is an Episcopal, year-round retreat center and summer youth camp that offers so much more.

Gravatt offers space for retreats and meetings. There are hotel style accommodations as well as rustic camping areas, which are available for guest rental in the fall and spring. They host church groups, nonprofits, businesses, youth groups, sports teams, family reunions and more. Group sizes range from 10 to 200. There's also space for primitive campers, teambuilding exercises and environmental education for school groups.

In addition to their many offerings, every December Gravatt hosts a Christmas retreat for military families. When interviewing former staff-member Lauri SoJourney, she explained the story of how this annual event began. "This retreat started in 2011. We used to do a lot of wonderful Strong Bonds events with the WTB and had a contract with them {WTB} for a military retreat at Christmas. The government funding for it {Christmas retreat} fell through at the last minute. I happened to tell a friend of mine at Rotary about our disappointment that the retreat was canceled. He happened to be an Aiken Standard reporter and said, 'That sounds like something people in Aiken would support if I wrote a story about it.' So he did, and we put on the retreat ourselves – with the help of a lot of volunteers. It was such an amazing gathering of the community that we decided to continue the retreat. Being able to serve the military families was something our staff looked forward to – it really breathed life into our ministry. Though we no longer have those {WTB} retreats, being able to give this gift to service men and women once a year has become a favorite tradition. Military families sacrifice a lot, and it feels good to be able to provide this for them. We have received a lot of positive feedback from the retreat participants, and our staff and volunteers love it."

"It's really special to see relationships develop over a weekend. Usually, on the first night, each family sits with their own unit at meals. By the end of the weekend, families come together at meals. The families really appreciate the time to be together doing activities like making gingerbread houses, high and low ropes courses, ziplining, canoeing, fishing, evening activities and, of course, a visit from Santa! Last year, a soldier told me that he'd been on other "family" retreats with the military where he hardly got to see his children at all. He really appreciated that Gravatt focuses on the families doing fun activities together. There is so much joy to be had at this retreat."

Since 2011, the Gravatt Christmas Retreat has grown from a few families to over 18 families in 2016. Because of the growing number of families, you are encouraged to apply the minute registration opens. "Typically we try to stay in a range of 15-20 families. It depends on the sizes of the families because of room arrangements. Initially we will have a waiting list, but because at times we have cancellations, we are able to contact families on the wait-list." So even if you don't get selected immediately, keep faith you may be called! If you aren't selected this year but still want to be a part of the weekend, Gravatt is always seeking families, churches, and organizations to donate their time and hands in the Gravatt kitchen during the retreat. This is a great opportunity to not only serve, but come together as a community.

COLLEGE LIFE SERIES

Part 2: College Finances

Samhari Stanley, Marketing Intern

Tuition costs and spending money are two of the most common concerns throughout college. Ensuring you have all you need financially for a flawless experience is difficult, but not impossible. Below are some questions to ponder regarding college finances:

1 Does the college of choice have your degree program?

Your major should be something you're passionate about. Although you may not know exactly what you want to do, at least pick a field you're interested in.

2 Where is the college located?

Basically, the state you pay taxes in can be less expensive than going somewhere out-of-state. In many cases, students decide to stay in-state to save money by staying with parents, relatives or friends, using different in-state grants/scholarships and limiting the amount of transportation fees to and from class.

3 How much does it cost to attend?

Community College vs Universities:

In some cases, attending a community college to receive an associate degree and then transferring to a university can be cost effective. Community colleges tend to be less expensive than universities. Be sure to check that your ultimate choice of university will accept the credits of the associate degree!

In-State Tuition vs Out-of-State Tuition:

In-state and out-of-state tuition at a public institution can have a great monetary difference between them. In many cases, students decide to stay in-state to save money. Private universities don't rely on state funding, so everyone pays the same cost of tuition.

4 What are some options available to assist with college finances?

Knowing and utilizing the different income and GPA based scholarships and grants available is a good start. Job opportunities offered through Work Study programs at universities is a good way to maintain a steady income. As a last resort, student loans (subsidized and unsubsidized) can assist you in paying for your education.

Before you write a check to any institution, be sure to have the above in mind. Each is an important factor in your college choice.

DKY?

Military and federally connected parents can help make a difference at your school! Each school year, generally during the fall, military and federally connected parents are asked to complete and return an Impact Aid Survey. While many parents do complete the survey, there are still parents who do not for various reasons – unsure of how the information collected will be used, lack of confidence in how funding will be used or they simply forgot to complete and return the survey. For answers to frequently asked questions about Impact Aid, see our article at www.fortgordon.com/fyi.
