VETERANS DAY

BY CRYSTAL BLACKWELL TYSON, EDITOR

There are many federal holidays government employees, service members and the District of Columbia look forward to – and while states have the right to designate their own national holidays, most always follow the federal lead. Veterans Day, November 11th (observed on November 12th), is a holiday which frequently gets lost in translation, often being confused with Memorial Day and Armed Forces Day. The difference in the three seems simple enough – one is dedicated to American service members of all wars, another is a time to remember those who have sacrificed their lives while protecting our country and, the last, pays tribute to the men and women who currently serve in the United States Armed Forces. Do you recognize the explanation of each?

President Woodrow Wilson began the first celebration, of what was then known as Armistice Day, in 1919 with parades marking the end of World War I. It wasn't until 1954 that President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed a legislation which replaced the word "Armistice" with "Veterans". Some still wear red poppies to commemorate the day but how do you actually celebrate this holiday? Other than relaxing during a four-day weekend, eating a free meal at a restaurant or parading in the streets, is there anything else to do?

In the past ten years, the amount of homeless veterans has risen. Everyone has their theory of why they believe this has become an epidemic but, at the end of the day, the amount of homeless veterans is still rising at an alarming rate. No one plans to get out of the military and become homeless. Augusta has a population of veterans who are homeless and need their "brothers and sisters in arms" (along with "Honor to the service member everywhere, who bravely bares his country's cause. Honor, also, to the citizen who cares for his brother in the field and serves as he best can the same cause."

– Abraham Lincoln

anyone else willing to help) to rededicate this Veterans Day to them. There are many places you can volunteer your time or donate to.

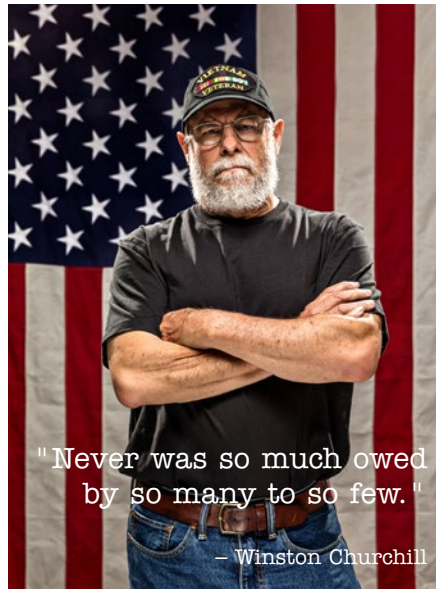

I've recently learned about the work Kansas City veterans has done with their village of tiny homes through the Veterans Community Project (VCP). Founded because of the frustrations of homelessness in the veteran community, this group provides transitional-housing and service solutions to help homeless vets get on the right track. Although VCP has created the beginnings of a huge game changer for veterans, other cities – including Augusta – have jumped on board.

In June of 2018, the Augusta VA Center opened the doors of the Freedom Path Apartments. As part of the federal Enhanced-Use Lease Program, three unused buildings were renovated to accommodate homeless veterans or those at risk of becoming homeless. A total of 98 unfurnished apartments became available. Of course this doesn't rid Augusta of its homeless population, but with Freedom's Path and local shelters, it puts a dent in the amount of veterans on the street.

What can you do to celebrate Veterans Day this year? Volunteer your time, help at your local food kitchen or donate your unused blankets and clothes to a shelter. Most importantly, be kind to a vet. One small gesture can mean a lot to someone who has lost it all. Never forget, the homeless are people too. It takes a village!

Happy Veterans Day to all who have served!

MILITARY TINY HOMES

BY CRYSTAL BLACKWELL TYSON, EDITOR

Tiny living, or minimalist living as some refer to it, is all the craze right now. I, myself, am in love with the idea of being able to take my home along with me everywhere I go. To be able to pick-up everything and move, sounds like the perfect forever home. But is this a possibility for service members and their families?

Tiny homes on wheels are not necessarily a new concept. If you've been on a road trip in a RV, you've experienced the minimalist lifestyle, regardless of the length of the trip. However, so-called minimalists are taking RV-styled homes, adding space and putting their entire life into such a small area. It seems the tiny home movement is becoming a social movement. People are downsizing, simplifying and living with less. It seems natural for military members to want the freedom and benefits of tiny living.

Everyone dreads moving day. When it's time to PCS, you put all of your necessities aside while movers pack the rest of your belongings. You travel to your new duty station and then you wait... and finally, after what seems like a lifetime, your household goods finally arrive! And don't forget about finding lodging while looking for a new home or waiting for on-post housing to become available. This can become a great burden. If you have a tiny home, you would only have to travel; ridding yourself of packing and preventing yourself from forgetting necessary items and completing the ever cumbersome list of broken and missing items from the move.

Homes from 12 to 24 feet or more can be found on roads across America. Recently, I learned of a village of tiny homes for veterans taking a bite out of veteran homelessness. While these homes range from 100-150 sq. ft., tiny homes come as big as 800 sq. ft. – although that really wouldn't be tiny living. Each state has specifications on the size of livable dwellings. The information is easily found online. The amount of residents in a tiny home can range from 1 to 5 - sometimes more, dependent upon space. You can decide to purchase land or rent lots in places such as Pointes West Army Resort. Although you can live in different areas with connectors for water, gas and space to dump waste, you can also choose to live totally off the grid with solar panels, gas and a portable or incinerating toilet. You have the option of designing your tiny home from the ground up. The possibilities are endless.

While you don't have to plan to stay in a tiny home for the duration of your next duty station, there are options for storing and bringing in some extra cash until it's time to use again. If you buy a home with land, you can place the tiny home next to you for visitors. Another option is utilizing the tiny home as an AirB-n-B or renting it out the old fashioned way! If none of these options work for you, no worries. You can always store your tiny home in long term parking such as space available at Gordon Car Care.

Mobile Gardening

By Kathleen Duncan, Fort Gordon Garden Coordinator

Being a military wife and a gardener was NOT easy. As a mobile gardener moving frequently, I had to utilize large pots, co-planting for convenience and beauty. As I continue my co-planting journey, I prefer patio pots to have some plants grow vertically, others to grow wide and some to drape. Fresh vegetables and herbs are a love of mine, so I add them to pots for convenience.

Having colorful pots, at least 18 inches deep and 18 inches wide, with good drainage, a pan to catch water and rocks on the bottom to help with drainage is a great place to start. For the larger pots, you may want to consider wheeled trays. This will help in transporting the pots in and out of the sun as needed. There's also the option of light-weight plastic pots which resemble clay-glazed pots. These can be found at the Exchange or any big box store. Being a mobile gardener requires lots of heavy lifting so eliminate as much as possible.

Deciding what type of garden you'd like can be a difficult process. Themed pots worked best for me. Two different options of themed planting would be a Pasta Garden in a Pot and Salsa in a Pot. Pasta Garden in a Pot can consist of one Roma tomato plant to grow vertically, a basil plant to grow wide and an oregano plant to drape. I've also added a green pepper plant to this themed pot when I use a wider pot. (Note: Basil and tomatoes are called companion plants because they help each other fight off bugs.) There are endless recipes you can create with these items, but adding pasta and a protein to this makes for a delicious entree. Salsa in a Pot can consist of one Roma tomato, a banana pepper and a jalapeno pepper - all grow vertically. Cilantro, although not a lengthy plant, grows wide. An idea I practice often is planting cilantro seeds at least a week apart in order to have a little fresh cilantro growing throughout the weeks. Nasturtium not only adds a nice peppery taste and decoration but drapes down as a piece of art. It's a natural helper plant that keeps bugs at bay.

Over my travels I've had several of these big themed pots which has kept my family happy with homegrown dinner staples. I've hung some plants on patio rails, combining different annual flowers, herbs and vegetables. Peas make for lovely trailing plants as long as you train them early to drape and not to cling to your flowers. Lettuce comes in a variety of colors and makes a nice fill for vertical plants. Combining vegetables with herbs and flowers on your patio is a site to see as well as fruitful. And although I've not grown garlic or onions very often because of the inexpensive cost at times, both plants have lovely tall spikes that make interesting additions to your patio pots. For many mobile gardeners, patio gardens are a way to set down "garden roots" no matter where they happen to be planted!

SEASONS Greetings

What a great time to be stationed here at Fort Gordon! My family and I are looking forward to celebrating the holidays with the Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines, and Civilians on the Fort Gordon team. Thank you for your service and contributions each and every day in support of our Nation. As we enjoy time with our family and friends let's pause and remember those deployed or standing the watch because freedom and democracy are never gifts that can be taken for granted. Thank you for all you do – Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

COL Jim Clifford, USAG Fort Gordon Commander

Happy holidays from my family to yours! To all of you who are part of our Fort Gordon family, I would like to express my gratitude for the role you each play in taking care of our service members and accomplishing the mission throughout the year. Over the holidays, I ask that you take care of yourselves, your families, and your friends. If you are traveling, travel safely, and if you are celebrating, celebrate responsibly. Come home to Fort Gordon refreshed and ready in 2019. May God bless each of you and your families in the New Year!

CSM Charlie Bryant, USAG Command Sergeant Major

Happy holidays and Merry Christmas to all members and friends of the Fort Gordon community. This special time of year is one that focuses on those positive aspects of this worldly existence – such as faith, family and especially love. I wish for you to take strength from those forces and encourage us all to reach out and be a positive influence in those lives that you touch. Have a great and safe holiday season!

Mr. Craig Larsen, MWR Director

DFMWR MARKETING STAFF

May your days be merry and bright. Have yourself a merry, little Christmas.

The Addis Family

We wish you God's blessings for a happy holiday season and a prosperous New Year.

The Tyson Family

Wishing you all the joys of the season and happiness throughout the coming year.

Cathy Shaw

Happy holidays and cheers to the New Year! Best wishes from our family to yours.

Nathan Hoeller and Family

Que tengan una Feliz Navidad y un prospero Año Nuevo.

La Familia Burgos

To you and yours, a very Merry Christmas and a Happy and safe New Year.

Jenifer Chrisman

I pray that we are all surrounded by the warmth and love of family and friends during this joyous time. For those who aren't, let's pray that they know they matter this holiday season and every season. Wishing everyone a Merry Christmas and a New Year filled with peace and happiness.

NEW VOLUNTEER ORIENTATION

Volunteer Training and Orientation is the last weekend in October; participants must be at least 14 years old. Volunteers must be able to commit to a minimum of 4 days a month for this year long commitment.

REGISTRATIONS OPEN

Registration for riding lessons (English and Western pleasure) has begun. These one-hour private lessons are now open for Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday camps. There are also single day camps available.

We are open Wednesday-Sunday throughout the fall to the public. We offer guided trail rides (no reservations required on the weekends), pony rides for those 6 and under and our Family Fun Day every third Saturday of each month. Hilltop is a great place to book a birthday party or facility rental for upcoming holiday events. Call us at 706-791-4864 for more information.

BULLDOG BBQ

Head to Pointes West Conference Center for the Bulldog BBQ on Saturday, November 24th. We're turning the conference center parking lot into a tailgate party. Enjoy a selection of BBQ favorites for purchase or bring your own grill! Watch Georgia take on in-state rival, Georgia Tech, on our giant, outdoor, inflatable screen with full audio. We're offering discounts on RV sites, primitive campsites and camping gear rentals for attendees. For more information, call 706-541-1057.

TINY HOMES COMING SOON!

PWAR will be receiving 10 tiny homes for rental. Park models offer the comforts of a modern home with the inner workings and energy efficiency of a Recreational Vehicle. These units will be ready to rent January 1st for under $80 per night.

REVIEW - Family Fun Day

FAREWELL SUMMER

PWAR bade farewell to summer with Family Fun Day at the beach. About 200 people came out for fun in the sun, food, music and games for the whole family. Winners from various age-groups competed and were treated to toys, prizes and school supplies before returning to school.

SAVE THE DATE

The 2019 MWR Health and Wellness Fair is January 12th. This annual event combines MWR partners with multiple organizations, both on and off the installation, to present service members with opportunities to learn how to live a healthier lifestyle. The event features informative booths that cover topics dealing with fitness, nutrition, mental health, finance, and overall wellness.

FYI

Gordon Fitness Center now offers fitness assessments to include blood pressure screenings, BMI, skinfold testing, flexibility testing, and fitness counseling.

Like all the fitness centers on the installation, Gordon Fitness Center features a virtual fitness kiosk. The Well Beats system features over 100 customized workouts in Zumba, kickboxing, step aerobics and much more.

NEW

STRENGTH RECORD BOARD

Be on the lookout for a strength record board at Gordon Fitness Center where patrons can record their max lifts. The board will be posted for all to see and generate friendly competition.

FRESH FALL MENU

Alternate Escapes Café – New coffee flavored smoothies: The Nut (mocha and peanut butter), Chocolatté (mocha and hazelnut) and Death by Chocolate.

MWR Café – New ultimate lunch combo specials, featuring gourmet sandwiches paired with tasty soup selections.

Towers Café – New convenient grab-and-go salads and wrap options.

NEW MORALE CALL

Come check out the new home of the Fort Gordon Morale Call! Join us on the third Thursday of the month at Gordon's Conference & Catering for free hors d'oeuvres, beverages and a cash bar. Earn an opportunity for a free room rental by having the highest attendance for your unit or directorate. There is no charge for this event and it is open to all of Fort Gordon. For more information, call 706-791-2205.

Gordon's Conference and Catering can host more than just conferences - stop in to learn more about our catering services and facility rentals for weddings, lunch meetings, expos, concerts and more!
