the end of an ERA...

“Do something today that your future self will thank you for.”

—Sean Patrick Flanery

Crystal Blackwell Tyson Editor, FYI Magazine

We are coming to an end of an era in regards to the printed FYI Magazine. What a ride! It's hard to describe how I feel as we close this chapter. I'd like to think bitter sweet is appropriate. Think about it – wine is bitter yet sweet at times, chocolate can be bitterly sweet, and coffee has a sweet taste but people can get bitter without it! Technically, these things, in moderation, can be good for you to a certain extent. I'd say this magazine had the same effect on me.

When I first started working with MWR, I was asked to write as a contributor. I loved to write, so that was not a problem. As the Marketing Department changed, my contribution to the magazine grew. Needless to say, I ended up being the editor (who would've thunk it). I've always wanted my writing to mean something, display the times and have feeling behind it. I will say, we've done a good job over the years.

These past few years have been challenging for us all: war, racism, pandemics, mental health, climate change and so much more. My take away from these challenges is for us all to be accountable for our choices. Do some self-evaluation to see what changes you can make to help this world become a better place. The FYI going strictly digital will save trees. By volunteering I can save lives. Being kind regardless of what I'm going through can spark kindness in others.

Cheers to the many lives that will be positively affected by your change(s)...including your own! It has been an honor serving in this position with all of you! Ciao for now!

Agape Chocolates

by Luke Lawrence, Augusta University

With the holidays behind us and Spring upon us, many people want to continue to support local businesses with their gift buying. Read about one of our long-time producers, Agape Chocolates, on our website "Meet My Farmer" blog at augustalocallygrown.blogspot.com. You can also find Agape Chocolates on the Augusta Locally Grown Online Farmers Market.

"Love for your fellow man. That's the meaning, and that's what we try to embody," said James Stefanakos, Agape Chocolates owner and founder. As he prepared to make several bars from scratch, I inquired as to what led to the name of his business. Like James, the word "agape" has Greek origins, and roughly translates to "love and charity for your fellow man." Being raised in a military family and 2nd generation Greek immigrant, James wanted to infuse his heritage with his benevolent values: integrity of a job well done; giving back to those who need help; valuing the community around you.

These values are the core of Agape Chocolates, and have been since the company's inception. It started in 2014 when James left his engineering job at a local firm. "I felt like I wasn't making a difference in the lives around me. I wanted to truly help people," he said. James loves to share about how his parents and grandparents influenced the start of his business. He draws upon the wisdom garnered from his father, who served in the Navy, and his Grandfather (Pappoulie) who served side by side with Colin Powell, former U.S. Secretary of State, and Eugene Fluckey.

At first, this was just a hobby but, after a steady increase in demand, a full-time business was formed. James also knew that, from the beginning, he wanted to run things outside of the established norms. "All kids deserve to eat." That straight-to-the-point, empathetic thinking embodies Agape Chocolates, right down to their slogan - Buy a bar, feed a child. To this day, Agape Chocolates has donated partial profits to food programs for every bar sold. To James, it is all about giving back. "It's not about how many bars we've sold, it's about how many children we've fed."

Registered Volunteer?

by Pamela B. Rachal, ACS Volunteer Coordinator

National Volunteer Appreciation Week is April 17th-23rd of 2022. Since most organizations are still following social distancing directives of their state or local government, organizations may have to continue to rethink their normal celebrations. However, we want to take a special opportunity to thank each volunteer for all their tireless devotion to the military community. It makes a difference to all who live and work on Fort Gordon.

Volunteering is an essential expression of human relationships and can be a person's basic need to participate in their community or feel a sense of mattering to others. Volunteering has excellent benefits which include:

- Networking
- Flexible hours
- Making new friends
- Learning new skills
- Maintaining skills
- Enhancing your resume
- Earning promotion points

The demand for volunteers has not decreased even during the COVID pandemic. Many have and still volunteer without having registered as statutory volunteers with ACS' Volunteer Management Information System (VMIS). Modern VMIS 2.0 thru the Army Family Web Portal (AFWP) assists with tracking volunteers, their hours, and other information. The VMIS program allow volunteers to keep volunteer hours, awards, training, volunteer service ribbons, and certificates in their Volunteer Service Record. Volunteers can also upload other documents such as college and scholarship applications, job applications, and resumes. Regulation AR 608-1, para.5-9n states "all volunteers must use this program." Without being registered in the system, you cannot get credit for hours served.

There are so many volunteer opportunities here at Fort Gordon. Some of these opportunities are event-driven, seasonal, and even occur on weekends. If you are interested in finding out more about the Volunteer program here at Fort Gordon. Volunteer Orientation classes are held monthly at the Family Outreach Center on the first Wednesday from 10-11am. Reservations are required. Contact Ms. Pamela B. Rachal at 706-791-8358 or at pamela.b.rachal.civ@army.mil for more information.

To Become a Statutory Volunteer:

1. You must register in VMIS at <https://www.armyfamilywebportal.com>.
2. Complete, sign, and maintain on file a DD Form 2793.
3. Attend an ACS Volunteer Orientation before working in an approved volunteer position.

Honor volunteers in each organization, workplace and community to let them know we "Salute" their heartfelt dedication and commitment to our community. We recognize and appreciate those who volunteer to realize they are integral to our organizations.

THE MARVELOUS MARIGOLD

by Kathleen Duncan, Fort Gordon Community Garden Coordinator

Marigolds are a marvelous and useful flower but one that often gets overlooked for flashier flowers. Marigolds, in all their glory and diversity, are the most useful plant in my garden. One of the nice things about marigolds is how easy they are to grow. Most of the time, my granddaughter helps me grow these happy flowers from seeds sowed directly in the garden. Marigolds are really hard to mess up and she LOVES watching them grow.

I use the smaller sized French marigolds around my vegetables as a companion plant and the small Signet marigolds for edging. I plant Calendula in my “wildflower” garden even though the flower is not really in the Marigold family. Calendula is a pretty, happy, yellow flower which is also edible. Add the petals to salads or stir-fry like you do Nasturtium for a peppery flavor and spots of color. My husband swears I am out to poison him with the “weird” ingredients I add to my cooking.

Let me break this down a bit more.

I plant the little cuties, Signets, around the border of my garden in my lower beds (I use raised garden beds, some are lower than others). This is supposed to keep rabbits out (not proven by research, more old farmers stories). It may work on rabbits but it definitely doesn't work on cats! I think my lack of bunny infestation has more to do with my neighbor's cats always being in my garden. I love these little marigolds, they are really cute and a nice pretty border so they are not required to keep bunnies out.

Marigolds are a great way to reduce bugs in my garden by planting the smallish French marigolds with my cucumbers, melons, eggplant and squash. This is a dual purpose companion planting as it keeps bugs, such as aphids, cucumber beetles and squash bugs, out of the garden. I really hate squash bugs!! As a companion plant it also helps basil, cucumbers, kale, squash and tomatoes grow stronger and healthier.

My tomato crop last year was dismal - too much rain and heat. It was just awful! I read that if you overplant with French marigolds in the off season, the flowers will naturally get rid of pesky nematodes. This left me with a BUNCH of marigolds to pull out to prep for this season. This abundance made me think I could dehydrate them and save the pretty yellow petals. Then the same husband who thinks I would poison him with nasturtiums looked at my petal collection and said “I don't want to see these in my food PLEASSEEEEE.”

Long story short, I then went looking for a project to do with the batch of petals and found a book on Amazon called “A Garden to DYE For” by Chris McLaughlin. There I found the answer to my petal problem - fresh picked or dehydrated marigolds make a yellow dye for yarns and fabrics. Like I needed another reason to plant marigolds! There is a process to making the dye but, if you can make spaghetti, you can make this dye. The book has a list of plants that can be used to make dyes so, if this interests you, the book can be found on Amazon.

Unfortunately, the Fort Gordon Community Garden is still closed for maintenance. However, I hope everyone now looks at the marvelous marigold as the glorious and diversely useful flower that it is and plant some in their home gardens this year. If you have questions or extra flower petals, please email me at kathleen.s.duncan4.naf@army.mil.

1 Name and Title

CSM Aaron Rose, Incoming Garrison Command Sergeant Major

2 Tell us a little about yourself. Where are you from? Anything you would like to share about your spouse, kids or family (high resolution photos are welcomed)? Do you have any hobbies? How long have you been in the Army? What are your most memorable duty stations? What led you to join the Army?

I am from Whitehouse, Texas, and have been married to my wife, Contessa, for 10 years. We have three children; Logan (22), McKenna (17), and Aviana (1). When I am not at work or spending time with my family, I thoroughly enjoy my home gym and carpentry - both allow me to reminisce on life. This summer will mark 25 years in the Army. I have so many great memories, but my most memorable jobs were Drill Sergeant at Fort Jackson, SC, and a Battalion Command Sergeant Major at Camp Arifjan, Kuwait. I grew up in a military family, so I always knew it was the path that I wanted to follow.

3 What is your leadership style?

My leadership style has not changed since I have been a NCO. I believe that people do not care what you know until they know you care. To show them you care, you must listen to hear and should be willing to do anything I ask someone else to do.

4 How would you describe the job of a Garrison CSM?

I feel my job as the Garrison CSM is to provide another resource to multiple people. The installation, the soldiers, the families, and the community are all counting on the Garrison Headquarters to ensure that facilities and capabilities are maintained. Doing this enables families and the community to thrive and, when they are taken care of, Soldiers can fulfill their duties for our country.

5 Do you have a history at Fort Gordon?

Unfortunately, I have only ever had an opportunity to serve at Ft. Gordon while attending Professional Military Education courses.

6 What's been your favorite role/job/title while in the Army?
My favorite role in the Army is the one that I made the greatest impact on another person. This did not always mean another soldier. Impacting a soldier, a family member or a member of the community is always the goal. I felt this when I was a Drill Sergeant and I truly feel that I can do that here!

7 What are you most looking forward to implementing during your time at Fort Gordon?
I truly feel that implementing or enhancing avenues that soldiers and families can use to take a break and enjoy life is a priority. I do not feel that I can do this on my own, so I plan on asking the population "What do you want me to focus and get implementation on?"

8 Are you familiar with MWR? What programs/facilities have you utilized the most throughout your career? What about your family?
My family and I are aware and involved with MWR on a regular basis. Previously, we have taken advantage of the many bowling alleys, movie theatres, lake access/equipment, car care centers and child development locations.

9 Are there any MWR programs you would like to see added to Fort Gordon?
As I am introduced to the Ft. Gordon Team, I notice that Ft. Gordon has a plethora of opportunities for families to get out and learn or enjoy activities. It makes me happy that we are invested to this extent and I hope to get the information out to everyone so these programs can thrive. I do intend to seek out and gather information from around the community for future program ideas.

10 Why is MWR important to the community?
Providing opportunities for the community to get out and increase morale through recreational activities and bonding is paramount to our military priorities - People First and Building Readiness. Creating spaces for this to happen is the most important thing Ft. Gordon MWR can do.

FAMILY Child Care

Army policy requires anyone providing care on a regular basis for more than 10 hours per week, be certified through Child and Youth Services as a FCC provider.

Are you interested in running your own childcare business? Are you creative, energetic, and love working with children? CYS Family Child Care program is currently recruiting residents on post who are interested in providing quality care in their home. Contact Parent Central Services at 706-791-4722.
